

WHO WILL TAKE THE STAIRS?

SPARTANS WILL.

Small steps matter. Engaging in 20 minutes of moderate-intensity physical activity each day can help reduce the risk of heart disease, high blood pressure, type 2 diabetes, and 13 types of cancers. Daily activity can also help treat depression, anxiety, and sleep disturbances. If you're able, step up and take the stairs.